On the 6th of July, 1778, Meares, in the ship Nootka, arrived off the cape and found that a "prodigious easterly swell rolled on the shore," and he had soundings in 16 fathoms over a hard, sandy bottom. "After we had rounded the promontory, a large bay, as we had imagined, opened to our view, that bore a very promising appearance and into which we steered, with every encouraging expectation. As we steered into the bay the water shoaled to 9, 8, and 7 fathoms, where breakers were seen right ahead, and from the masthead they were observed to extend across the bay. We therefore hauled out." The name Cape Disappointment was given to the promontory. It was called Cape Hancock by Gray in 1792. He changed this name to Cape Disappointment upon hearing that Meares had so named it. Cape Disappointment retained by Vancouver, by Belcher in 1839, and by Ex. Ex. in 1841. Duflot de Mofras, 1844, calls it Cape San Roque or Disappointment. It was called Cape Hancock or Disappointment at the first examination of the entrance to the river, in 1850, and the name Hancock subsequently in a secondary manner in the Lighthouse List, but the name Disappointment is that used on the official charts and by all navigators.—Pacific Coast Pilot, 1889, p. 456.

Haiti; island and Republic, West Indies. (Not Hayti.) Haiti was the native name of the island when Columbus landed, on December 6, 1492, and called it Espagnola, which was Latinized into Hispaniola. The French colony which gained control of a part of the island was called Saint Domingue, and in 1795, when France acquired title to the entire island by treaty with Spain, it was called Saint Domingue; but when the French were driven out and independence declared, in 1804, the aboriginal name Haiti was revived by the negroes. Shortly after this the Spaniards reestablished themselves in the eastern part of the island, retaining the French name modified to Santo Domingo, but in 1821 lost control, and from 1822 to 1843 the whole island was under one Government as the Republic of Haiti. In 1844 the eastern portion of the island again asserted its independence of Haiti and established the Dominican Republic, which remains to the present day. Thus today the island of Haiti, which seems to be the proper name, consists of two countries, Haiti on the west end and Santo Domingo on the east end.—R. C.
